

Back in 1973 I had a dream, to find a way to predict the intra-day short term movement of stock indexes reaching at least 90% accuracy. The road blocks were the costs to finance the number of servers and custom software required to monitor all the stock price ticks (real time) which represented the indexes (ie S&P 500). During the following decades I spent time with Wall Street firms as a VP, trader, money manager and founded a successful software firm with top programmers, taking a company public and creating real time software solutions. - Michael Whelchel

Now, in 2008, we found a solution on how to manage the real time data flows, saving millions of dollars and programs were written to watch for certain patterns in the underlying stocks. The results have been amazing and samples are published online at www.roadshowtrader.com. We are forming a company called Private BlackBox LLC and we feel that within 6-12 months a turnkey system reaching 90% accuracy will be programmed, backtested and generating profits. With a small amount of trading capital over $25K per day in trading profits can be earned by members with no concern whether the markets move up or down.

We need $250k ($500k max) in capital to reach this dream, we have personally invested over $100k of our own capital & we will invest more. The end product will be turnkey, not requiring a trader. The final product will not be for sale, nor offered to the public, only members. If you want to be a sheep, buy the indicators for sale online -- if you want to own your own BlackBox -- call us.
